1 Data Protection Policy overview

In order to operate efficiently, Sound and Music collects information about the people it works with, those who use its services and products and those who sign up to the organisation’s communications.

This data may include personal data which is collected and used in order to improve Sound and Music’s work, to inform planning and developments and to communicate and deliver national change.

Sound and Music collects information from a range of individuals, and this Data Protection Policy and Privacy Policy outlines how and why that data is used, how it is stored and how it is protected. Sound and Music collects different types of data to inform and improve its services and products, to campaign and lobby for change and to update users and audiences on activity and opportunities.

This Data Protection Policy has been revised and developed in line with the new General Data Protection Regulation (‘the GDPR’) which comes into force in the UK from the 25th May 2018. The GDPR aims to protect all individuals’ personal and sensitive data and replaces the previous Data Protection Act 1998 (‘the DPA’).

There is more information about the GDPR and its ‘five principles’ here. Sound and Music is committed to reviewing this policy annually. This process will be led by its registered Data Protection Officer, supported by the Chief Executive and Board of Trustees.

2 Definitions

‘Personal data’ is defined under GDPR as being “any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person. An identifiable person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, online identifier (including cookies) or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that person”.

It can include a variety of information, including names, addresses, contact details, age, ethnicity, gender, financial details and other personal details. The GDPR also specifically addresses the data and rights of living individuals. It may also include identifying collateral such as photographs and biographies.

Sound and Music can hold personal data for a limited timeframe, as long as that timeframe is clear to the individuals and consent obtained, as outlined below.

Under the GDPR potentially ‘sensitive personal data’ is called ‘special category data’ and this is defined as “data consisting of racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, or trade union membership, genetic data, biometric data, data concerning health or data concerning a natural person’s sex life or sexual orientation”.

3 Our core commitments

In creating this updated Data Protection and Privacy Policy, Sound and Music has:

• Undertaken training with the Senior Management and the wider executive team
• Instated an internal Steering Group to oversee this work
Sound and Music commits to:

- Sought qualified external advice and legal support
- Registered as a Data Controller with the Information Commissioner’s Office
- Assigned an internal Data Protection Officer

Sound and Music commits to:

- Gain consent from all individuals on all mailing lists and databases via ‘opt in’ methods – by May 2018
- Take all reasonable steps to ensure that personal data is kept secure at all times against unauthorised or unlawful loss or disclosure – by May 2018
- Secure the government led Cyber Essentials Certificate and develop an internal IT Security Policy – by September 2018
- Review all third party relationships and wider data protection compliance – by October 2018
- Ensure that all members of the organisation are sufficiently trained and that those managing or handling personal data understand the responsibilities for upholding this Data Protection and Privacy Policy and best practice – by December 2018
- Undertake a comprehensive audit of all data held by the organisation, improving processes and storage in line with or exceeding legal requirements – by April 2019
- Document all training, meetings, improvements and decisions made in regards to the organisation’s policy for the collection, storage and use of data – by May 2019
- Regularly undertake an assessment, evaluation and review of this policy and all related processes – by May 2019 then annually
- Publish a new Policy in line with the development of a new Primary Platform www.soundandmusic.org – By Jan 2021

4 Data we collected

Sound and Music works with many different individuals and collects different types of information, as a ‘Controller’ of data (see GDPR definition here).
Sound and Music can break down the individuals from whom it collects data, and how and what data it collects, into eight categories, as outlined below:

6 Privacy Policy

Sound and Music complies with the ‘Lawfulness, Fairness and Transparency’ principle by providing data subjects with the following Privacy Policy which is clearly available across all of its platforms and websites.

Sound and Music is committed to protecting your personal information.

We want our services to be safe and enjoyable environments for everyone. This section answers some important questions about how we can collect, use and protect your personal details.

When you interact with Sound and Music we sometimes receive personal information about you. For example, if you write to us or sign up to a newsletter, you might tell us who you are, how we can contact you, where you live and what you think of us.

Information we may collect

We collect personal data about:

- Donors
- Applicants to employment and board
- Contributors and subscribers
- Participants in Sound and Music’s programmes
- Composers and artists
- External advisers and suppliers

The personal data we collect might include name, date of birth, email address, postal address, and telephone number, and we may also collect anonymised Equal Opportunities monitoring data which includes information about protected characteristics and socio-economic background.

How we collect your information

Across Sound and Music’s platforms the organisation may collect and process the following data about you:

- Information that you provide by filling in forms on our websites; this includes information provided at the time of registering to use our site, subscribing to our services, posting material and requesting further services
- We may also ask you for information when you report a problem with our site
- If you contact us, we may keep a record of that correspondence
- We may also ask you to complete surveys that we use for research purposes, although you do not have to respond to them
- Details of your visits to platforms including but not limited to traffic data, location data, devices and other behavioural data
Why we collect your information

We collect information for the purposes set out in this policy. There are a number of lawful bases for our data processing, depending on the activity (see Part 4 of this document).

These lawful bases include:

• your consent for the;
  o processing which is necessary for the performance of a contract to which you are a party (if you fail to provide this information we may be unable to perform the contract)
  o processing which is necessary for compliance with our legal obligations o processing which is necessary for the purpose of the legitimate interest pursued by us or a third party, except where your rights as a data subject override our legitimate interest

How we use your information

When using Sound and Music’s platforms you authorise us to use your personal information for the following purposes, as outlined above in this

Data Protection Policy:

• To the extent reasonably necessary to provide the services which are available through the website by us or our partners
• To enable us to review, develop and improve our services and provide you and other users with relevant information about our services (e.g. through a newsletter or a news alert)

• To personalise the way Sound and Music content is presented to you (e.g. if you tell us your postcode we may use this information to customise our communications with you)

Third Parties

Sound and Music only works with third parties who are fully GDPR compliant. We may share personal data with the following third parties:

• Mailchimp
• Salesforce
• PayPal
• WooCommerce
• Google (for use of Google Drive)
• Dropbox
• Eventbrite
• Airtable
• SurveyMonkey
• Stripe

With the explicit consent of participants in our programmes, we may also share their personal data with organisations we are partnering with in order to deliver those programmes

• Sound and Music may share your personal information with third parties for marketing purposes in accordance with Your Preferences

If you do not want us to share your personal data with any third party for marketing purposes, please let us know using the contact details Contact us or by updating Your Preferences on the relevant platform
Sound and Music may need to provide your information to freelance contractors and suppliers who provide services on our behalf, to the extent necessary to enable you to receive those services.

If you make a payment or donation to us we will need to share your information with our payment processor. By paying via our payment processor you agree to accept their Terms and Conditions for the use of their services, including their Privacy Policy.

Sound and Music strongly suggest that you read their Privacy Policy when using their service as we are not responsible for data you share with them. Sound and Music may also need to disclose your information if required to do so by law or as expressly permitted under applicable data protection legislation.

Our website may, from time to time, contain links to and from the websites of our partner networks, advertisers and affiliates.

If you follow a link to any of these websites, please note that these websites have individual Privacy and Cookies Policies and that Sound and Music does not accept any responsibility or liability for these policies.

Please check these policies before you submit any personal data to these websites.

How long we keep your information for Sound and Music keep your information for no longer than is necessary.

We will retain your information for any period required by law, for example for compliance with HMRC and/or employee requirements. Where we are not under a legal obligation to retain your information, the organisation has determined what is necessary by reference to the lawful basis for processing set out above and our legitimate interests please see the table above for further information.

If you have any questions about how long we keep your information, please Contact us.

How we protect your information

Sound and Music take appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure that the information disclosed to us is kept secure, accurate and up to date and kept only for so long as is necessary for the purposes for which it is used.

Sound and Music works with an external IT Support organisation which have the ISO27001 security standards in place which protect your information, as part of this policy we will be registering with the government led Cyber Essentials Certificate to ensure that our systems compile with network changes, IT practices and with the implementation of relevant security procedures.

Sound and Music uses a secure service when you make a donation through our website, via a virtual gateway operated by PayPal, Woocommerce or Stripe.

You should be aware that the use of the Internet is not entirely secure and although Sound and Music will do our best to protect your personal data we cannot guarantee the security or integrity of any personal information which is transferred from you or to you via the Internet.

Any transmission is at your own risk. Once we have received your information, Sound and Music will use strict procedures and security features such as encryption to try to prevent unauthorised access.

Your data protection choices
Subscribers can manage all their subscription options, including email notification preferences across Sound and Music’s platforms, under Your Preferences, within their subscriber account settings.

For example, should you wish, you can ‘opt in’ or ‘opt out’ of receiving direct marketing from us at any stage by deselecting the relevant box on your options page and saving the changes.

Sound and Music will not disclose your personal information to third parties for advertising or marketing purposes unless you specifically agree.

Security

Sound and Music has security measures in place to ensure as far as is reasonably possible that your personal information is protected and kept confidential.

However, by submitting your personal information to us, you acknowledge that we cannot guarantee the security or confidentiality of your personal information as it may be compromised by unauthorised access, hardware or software failure or other relevant factors. If you would like to find out more about our security measures, please Contact us.

Your Rights

You have the right to ask us to confirm whether Sound and Music is processing information about you, and to request access to this information (‘right of access’).

You may ask us, or we may ask you, to rectify information you or we think is inaccurate, and you may also ask us to remove information which is inaccurate or complete information which is incomplete (‘right to rectification’).

If you inform us that your personal data is inaccurate, Sound and Music will inform relevant third parties with whom we have shared your data so they may update their own records.

Sound and Music want to ensure that your personal information is accurate and up to date.

If any of the information that you have provided us with changes, for example if you change your email address, name, payment details, or if you wish to cancel your registration, please Contact us

You have a right to obtain your personal data from us and reuse it for your own purposes, perhaps for another service, without hindering the usability of the data (‘right of portability’).

This right does not apply where processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in us.

You have a right to seek the erasure of your data (often referred to as the ‘right to be forgotten’). You may wish to exercise this right for any reason, for example where it is no longer necessary for us to continue holding or processing your personal data you may withdraw your consent.

You should note that we are entitled to and reserve the right to retain your data for statistical purposes. This right is not absolute, as we may need to continue processing this information, for example, to comply with our legal obligations, or for reasons of public interest.

You have a right to ask us to restrict our processing of your information (‘right to restriction’) if;

- you contest its accuracy and we need to verify whether it is accurate
- the processing is unlawful and you ask us to restrict use of it instead of erasing it
- we no longer need the information for the purpose of processing, but you need it to establish or defend legal claims
You have a right to prevent us from processing your data for the purposes of marketing.

If you would like to exercise any of your rights above, please let us know using the contact details at the end of this Privacy Policy.

Sound and Music will act in accordance with your instructions as soon as reasonably possible and there will be no charge.

You have a right to report any of your concerns about our use of your data to the Information Commissioner’s Office.

You may do so by calling their helpline at 0303 123 1113

Acknowledgement

By using any of Sound and Music’s platforms and website you acknowledge that you have read the terms of this Privacy Policy and that you consent to the collection of information from you and use of such information as described in the related policies.
Changes to our Privacy Policies

Any changes Sound and Music makes to any of our Privacy Policies in the future will be posted on the relevant platform and where appropriate notified to you by e-mail.

7 Compliance with other Data Protection Principles

Purpose Limitation

Personal data may only be processed for the specific purposes notified to the individual when the data was first collected or for any other purposes specifically permitted by the GDPR. This means that personal data must not be collected for one purpose and then used for another. If it becomes necessary to change the purpose for which the data is processed, the individual must be informed of the new purpose before any processing occurs.

Data Minimisation

Personal data should only be collected to the extent that it is required for the specific purpose notified to the individual. Any data which is not necessary for that purpose should not be collected in the first place.

Accuracy

Personal data must be accurate and kept up to date. Steps should therefore be taken to check the accuracy of any personal data at the point of collection and at regular intervals afterwards, where it is practicable to do so. Inaccurate or out-of-date data should be destroyed.

Storage Limitation

Personal data should not be kept longer than is necessary for the purpose. This means that data should be destroyed or erased from our systems when it is no longer required. For guidance on how long certain data should be kept before being destroyed, please see the table at Part 5 above.

8 Transfer Limitations

The GDPR restricts data transfers to countries outside the EEA in order to ensure that the level of data protection afforded to individuals under the GDPR is not undermined.

You transfer personal data originating in one country across borders when you transmit, send, view or access that data in or to a different country.

Sound and Music may only transfer Personal Data outside the EEA if one of the following conditions applies;

- the European Commission has issued a decision confirming that the country to which we transfer the personal data ensures an adequate level of protection for the data subjects’ rights and freedoms; or appropriate safeguards are in place such as standard contractual clauses approved by the European Commission

9 Third Party Platforms

In order to deliver its programmes, projects, activity and services Sound and Music uses ‘Third Party’ platforms; that are recognised and trusted and regularly reviews their delivery and methods.

Sound and Music aims to work with reputable services and those who share an open and transparent ethos.

10 Key Risks

Sound and Music has identified the following potential risks which this Data Protection Policy and Privacy Policy has been designed to address:

- Breach of confidentiality (information being accessed inappropriately)
- Insufficient clarity about the range of uses to which data will be used — leading to Data Subjects being insufficiently informed
- Failure to offer choice about data use when appropriate
- Breach of security by allowing unauthorised access
- Failure to establish efficient systems of managing changes leading to personal data being outdated
- Harm to individuals if personal data is not up to date

11 Governance

Data protection, and the Data Protection Policy and Privacy Policy are the responsibility of the Data Protection Officer and the Chief Executive of Sound and Music.

Sound and Music’s Board of Trustees recognises its overall responsibility for ensuring that the organisation complies with its legal obligations and reviews the Policy annually.
All staff and freelance parties are required to read, understand and accept this Data Protection Policy and apply them to any data they handle in the course of their work.

Significant breaches of this Data Protection Policy will be handled under Sound and Music’s disciplinary procedures.

12 Confidentiality and disclosure requests

Where anyone within Sound and Music feels that it would be appropriate to disclose personal data for reasons not covered by the Data Protection Policy, or where an official disclosure request is received, this will only be done with the authorisation of the Chief Executive (or, in the absence of the Chief Executive, the Chair of Trustees).

All such disclosures will be documented.

13 Communication of the Policy

The Data Protection Policy and Privacy Policy is published on the Sound and Music website, and available to all team members at induction and via the Staff Handbook.

14 Data Subject Rights

Personal data must be processed in line with individuals’ rights. Under the GDPR, individuals have a right to:

- Request access to any data held about them by a data controller. This is known as a subject access request, or a SAR. For details on how SAR’s should be handled, please refer to the specific section below.
- Prevent the processing of their data for direct-marketing purposes.
- Ask to have inaccurate data amended.
- Prevent processing that is likely to cause damage or distress to themselves or anyone else.

Any member of staff who receives a request from a data subject for access to their personal data must refer this immediately to the Data Protection Officer.

Subject Access Requests

Sound and Music is committed to providing information about individuals’ personal data and usage on request.

The organisation will aim to provide any information within a 14 day period unless otherwise agreed.

Any personal data requests will be handled in the first instance by the Data Protection Officer. Sound and Music will not charge for Data Protection requests.

All requests must adhere to the following:

- Personal data subject access requests must be in writing
All staff and freelance parties are required to pass on anything which might be a subject access request to the Data Protection Officer without delay and within two working days of receiving the request at the most.

Where the individual making a subject access request is not personally known their identity will be verified before handing over any information.

The required information will be provided via email or post unless the applicant makes a specific request to be given supervised access in person.

Sound and Music will respond to all Personal data requests within 14 days.

If the complaint is that the personal data is inaccurate, inform the complainant that it shall be rectified as soon as possible, update the record and notify your line manager;

- for a complaint of a more serious nature, including any allegation of misuse of personal data, inform your line manager who should refer to the Data Protection Officer immediately.

Requests for information: any member of staff who receives a written request (including by e-mail) for access to personal data should forward it to the Data Protection Officer immediately and inform their line manager that they have done so.

If an individual makes a verbal request for access to their personal data, they should be asked to put their request in writing and told that Sound and Music will require proof of their identity before dealing with such requests.

15 Consent

Personal data and sensitive personal data will only be made public with the full and informed consent of the individuals, and identification may be requested by Sound and Music, this includes photographs.

Whenever data is used for any marketing purpose, this purpose will be made clear, and individuals will be given a clear opt out.

16 Dealing with External Complaints

- If a member of Sound and Music’s team receives an external complaint relating to Sound and Music’s use of personal data they are required to:
