Running Order TBC

Rua da Anita..... Miguel

'An insight of joyous cul-de-sac throughout the evening.'

Saturday Morning Stroll.....Flora

Bossanova Breeze.....Anthony

The Magic Faraway Tree..... Luca

'I wrote this piece about the things I love about Jazz. The coming together of the grooves, harmonies and mysteries I love.'

The Promenade.....Billie

'In the modern world, how do we navigate the relationship between classical music and jazz? 'The Promenade' is my response to this question. It tells the story of three 17th-century musicians who go on a walk and accidentally stumble into a jazz club - will they learn to feel the groove?'

Tibet.....George R

‘It is called Tibet as I thought of it structurally as a plateau. However, to me plateau implies that it's quite boring. So I named it after a place with lots of plateaus. Tibet.’

Small Hours Swing.....Alec

‘My piece is called Small Hours Swing because I thought of the main idea between the hours of 1 and 3 in the morning. I hope you enjoy it!’

Go For It.....Nathaniel

You will be transformed to go for it, persuading you to take risks because time flies quickly in life.’

New Pockets.....Will

‘A piece to (hopefully) show you life is still evolving, and that it doesn't necessarily make all things bad.’

---

A special thank you to Issie for all of her incredible tutelage this week and over the past 14 years, and to the musicians & runners Billy and Joel, and Tom, Troy, Peter and Matti for their phenomenal tech support.
